PIRATES CAUGHT BY BRITISH SHIPS.

DRAMATIC AFFAIR NEAR BIAS BAY.

PRAISEWORTHY FEAT FINISHED OFF BY H.M.S. SOMME.

SEA-RAIDERS ARRESTED.

TWO British merchant ships played a praiseworthy part in a little two-act drama enacted off Pedro Blanco, the northern arm of Bias Bay yesterday morning, intervening in a piratical attack on a trading junk with such success that twelve alleged pirates are now in the hands of the Hongkong police.

The suspects were brought into Hongkong by H.M.S. Somme last night, the destroyer having picked up a wireless message giving the whereabouts of the attempted piracy while exercising in Mirs Bay.

H.M.S. Somme immediately went to the assistance of the s.s. Hangsang and s.s. Soochow, the vessels concerned in the adventure, found that three junks, two of them pirate craft, had been rounded up, took charge of the affair, bringing the three junks and the suspects to Hongkong, arriving late last night.

HANGSANG AND SOOCHOW'S WORK.

Full details of the affair may not be available until the return of the Hangsang and Soochow, which were bound from Hongkong to Tientsin, via Swatow, and which continued their voyage, but an exceedingly interesting story has been obtained from officers aboard the Somme.

It was the firing of shots from small arms, accompanied by cries of "save life" which first drew the attention of the s.s. Hangsang (Captain A. D. Kelman) as she was approaching Pedro Blanco, then four hours out of Hongkong. The dramatic spectacle was presented of a small junk scuttling with full sail before the wind, evincing signs of great distress, while pressing closely in her wake, were two other junks with black sails from which volleys of shots were being poured into the fugitive craft.

Escape Cut Off.

Taking in the situation, the Hangsang altered her course and bore in on the pursuing junks.

The tables were turned, the pirate junks in their turn became fugitives, as they sought to escape the attentions of the unexpected intervenor.

They turned tail, but whatever line of escape they attempted was intercepted by the Hangsang, which like a Nemesis, unrelentingly bore on them, threatening to cut them in two.

Soochow Joins In.

Soon afterwards, the B. & S. Soochow (Capt. P. J. Green) which left Hongkong an hour after the Hangsang arrived on the scene, and gave effective assistance to the other steamer in rounding up the suspected craft.

A wireless message sent out by the Hangsang was intercepted by H.M.S. Somme then cruising about in the adjacent waters of Mirs Bay. The Somme proceeded with all speed to the spot indicated in the message, and found the steamers standing by the suspected craft.

After a brief report by Captain Kelman, the Commander of the Somme detailed off naval parties, which boarding the two suspected junks, took off both of their crews, bringing them back on the Somme where they were detained under close guard.

Arms Thrown Overboard.

It is stated that before the arrival of the warship Captain Kelman observed something being dumped overboard from the junks, probably the arms.

No arms of any description were actually discovered when the naval

KING'S SISTER SUDDENLY DIES IN SLEEP.

TWO DAUGHTERS AT DEATH-BED.

COURT MOURNING FOR SIX WEEKS.

PRINCESS ROYAL.

London, Jan. 4.
The Princess Royal, the King's eldest sister, who has been an invalid for some time, died suddenly from heart failure this afternoon. Her condition had given rise to a great deal of anxiety, but the end was somewhat unexpected.

A bulletin issued this evening stated:

"The Princess Royal passed away somewhat suddenly in her sleep at 2.30 p.m. in the presence of her daughters, Princess Arthur of Connaught and Lady Maud Carnegie, who had received urgent messages when signs of heart failure became apparent."

It is officially stated that there will be six weeks' Court Mourning, four of full mourning and two weeks of half-mourning.

Wreck of "Delhi."

The Princess Royal, who was born in 1867, married, at the age of 22, the Earl of Fife, who was not of Royal blood, the love match appealing strongly to the public. The Earl was created Duke of Fife at the wedding breakfast.

With her husband and two daughters, the Princess had a narrow escape from death in 1911 when the liner "Delhi" in which they were travelling for the opening of the Khartoum Cathedral, was wrecked off Tangier.

They were all thrown into the sea when their lifeboat collapsed, but were rescued by sailors. The Duke died in Egypt a month after the wreck.

Distaste for Court Life.

Naturally quiet and retiring, the Princess participated less than any other member of the Royal Family in social and state functions. Most of her time was spent at her home Mar Lodge, Aberdeenshire.

It is recorded that the Princess was born on February 20, 1867 and from the age of 19 the Princess developed a keen distaste of court routine.

Her brother, now King George, but then only a midshipman in the British Navy and second in line to the throne, one day drew his sword and "dubbed" his sister "Her Royal Shyness" a title which she bore since that time. She was not created Princess Royal until 1905.

Defied Family.

A great favourite of Queen Victoria, her grandmother, she was marked out from an early age for a diplomatic marriage with a prominent Continental Prince.

Princess Louise, however, defied her grandmother, and the entire Royal Household declaring that she would marry "for love."

After her marriage, at the request of the Duke, she immediately dispensed with her ladies-in-waiting, special guards on State occasions and other Royal formalities. They resided at Duff House, Scotland, the Duke's home, until the Princess' health broke down, when much time was spent by the Duke and Duchess travelling on the Continent and in Northern Africa.

Music Hobby.

After her husband's death, the Princess Royal spent much of her time in hunting in Scotland, but later gave up all strenuous travel and sport for a quieter life in Scotland.

Music was the Princess' only hobby and she was an accomplished organist. —Reuter, British Wireless and T.B.S.

CHIANG CONFERS WITH OFFICERS.

Shanghai, Jan. 4.

President Chiang Kai-shek entertained a number of naval officers at his residence here this afternoon and discussed with Admiral Yang Shu-chang and Vice-Admiral Chan Shao-kuen plans for the reorganization of the National Navy.

The President is contemplating appointing a new Military Governor for Fukien to take the place of Admiral Yang Shu-chang.

Wife's Story.

Coming to the actual crime, Mr. Murphy said that at about 5 o'clock, or a few minutes before, on the morning of December 18, the deceased's wife was awakened by her husband getting out of bed. She would tell the Court that he put his shoes on, unlocked the door and went out. Just as he got outside the door, he made a half turn to the right and made a motion as if to switch on the electric light outside. The electric light in his room had already been switched on, but the light in the passage was never put on.

Just as he turned, his wife heard him shout more than once and then he moved forward and disappeared from her sight. Then, for a matter of a few moments, she saw the accused through the door of her room. When he came into view he was holding a stained knife in his hand. Neither spoke and accused

CRAFT ADRIFT.

BOUND WOMAN FOUND IN WATER.

Following the discovery of an abandoned junk and the body of a woman with her hands tied behind her back, near the Lai-chikok waterworks, police suspect that wholesale murder has been committed in that vicinity. The woman has so far not been identified. Dragging for further bodies is being carried out.

At 10.15 p.m. yesterday the junk, a passenger craft No. 13066V, was found drifting into the dock near the water-works, with no one aboard. All valuables and removed clothing had been suspected following the discovery of bloodstains on the deck.

Investigations resulted in the finding of a woman's body floating in the water in the vicinity, a few hours later. The woman had the

EXTRAORDINARY SCENES.

New York, Jan. 4.

Extraordinary scenes are reported from England, Arkansas, the erstwhile rich agricultural district.

"We want food. Give us food for our starving families," was the piteous cry of five hundred famished farmers, who stormed the town yesterday, threatening to seize the food in the stores.

Their crops were destroyed in the ravages of the autumn drought and their livelihood has gone.

The Red Cross managed to supply nearly three hundred, but the remainder were unlucky. —Reuter's American Service.

Missing Keys.

Continuing, Mr. Murphy said the key that opened the bedroom also opened two other doors, and there had been, at one time, four duplicates, but about three months ago, during the time that the accused was still employed, three disappeared, the remaining one being kept by the deceased.

After the crime, this key was found on the table in the kitchen, out of reach of any person from outside. It had been bent in such a way that it could not be inserted from outside.

On the night of the murder, the baby amahs slept upstairs in the main building. The deceased and his wife were sleeping in their own room next to the kitchen, and the cook in another room in the servants' quarters, with the wash amah in the adjoining room. It was believed that the doors had been secured for the night by the deceased.

and seemed about 30 years of age. A rope was twisted tightly round her neck and her hands were bound behind her back.

Police believe the woman was one of the crew of the junk, as the body did not appear to have been in the water for any length of time. Dragging is being carried on to discover whether the woman is the solitary victim, or if others, if not the entire crew, have been murdered.

THE FELIX VILLA MURDER.

FULL STORY TOLD IN COURT.

BLOODSTAINS FOUND ON ACCUSED'S FINGERS.

WHAT WIDOW SAW.

The circumstances of the recent murder of the No. 1 house-boy employed by Mr. Ohl, of 9, Felix Villas, were recounted by Mr. T. Murphy (Assistant Director Criminal Intelligence) before Mr. Lindsell at the Central Police Court this morning when the hearing of the capital charge against Chu Suk-mei (22), a native of Shanghai, was commenced.

After explaining the lay-out of the premises at 9, Felix Villas, the residence of Mr. R. Ohl, the local agent of the Messageries Maritimes, Mr. Murphy said the deceased had been employed at the premises for about 18 months, first as house coolie and, about three months before the crime was committed, as the No. 1 "boy." The defendant was employed there as No. 1 "boy" up to the time of his dismissal, about three months before the murder.

Besides the defendant and the deceased, both of whom were natives of Shanghai, there were two baby amahs and a servant amah employed. The deceased and his wife occupied a room near the kitchen.

Servant Quarrels.

It appeared that the accused was dismissed for being involved in quarrels and also fights with the other servants, but, otherwise, it was believed, he had been a very satisfactory servant. After his dismissal the deceased was appointed in his place as No. 1 "boy" and he moved into the accused's old room.

The deceased appears to have been in fear of somebody wanting to do him an injury as there was an additional padlock on his door, besides the ordinary door lock. A slip of paper had been inserted into the door lock to prevent it from being opened from outside.

To insert this piece of paper the lock had to be dismantled. Furthermore, there was an iron bar kept in the room, and it was assumed that this was there for defensive purposes.

Missing Keys.

Continuing, Mr. Murphy said the key that opened the bedroom also opened two other doors, and there had been, at one time, four duplicates, but about three months ago, during the time that the accused was still employed, three disappeared, the remaining one being kept by the deceased.

STANDARD OIL CO. OF N.J.

SHIPPING INTERESTS BEING CONSOLIDATED.

BIG NEW COMPANY.

New York, Jan. 4.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has strengthened its operations abroad by the formation of "The International Company, Limited," in which is consolidated all the shipping activities of its subsidiaries in foreign waters.

The plan provides for bunkers and all other floating equipment of its seventeen subsidiaries in Europe to become "pooled" in one organization, with one management, which, it is believed, will be the largest private oil-carrying marine outfit on the other side of the Atlantic.

The lines on which the Company will be operated are said to be similar to those of the Standard Shipping Company, representing several thousand oil-tankers, barges and equipment for oil commerce in American waters.

The headquarters of the new Company will be established at Lichtenstein, and the operations include complete control of all other floating equipment, which will be allocated to various foreign subsidiaries affiliated with the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Routes and cargoes will be designated, and additional tankers chartered if necessary, or idle tankers be chartered to the "pool." —Reuter's American Service.

INTERVENTION OF GOVERNMENT.

MAY BE SOUGHT IN THE COTTON DISPUTE.

London, Jan. 4.

Prolonged negotiations in complicated dispute between the employers and the operatives in the weaving section of the cotton industry were renewed yesterday after reaching a deadlock on Friday, but no agreement was found possible.

The dispute concerns a proposal to increase the number of looms in charge of each operative and its effect on wages and condition.

A stoppage in some of the mills on Monday is inevitable, but great efforts will be made to prevent its spreading.

The points still at issue are regarded as of secondary importance and the intervention of the Government may be sought. —British Wireless.

BRITISH PLANES FOR BELGIUM.

TWO ORDERS TOTAL OVER £300,000.

London, Jan. 4.

The Belgian Government has confirmed a large order for British two-seater, fighter aeroplanes intended for re-equipment of the Belgian Army air regiments.

The contract, which was obtained in competition with foreign aircraft, provides for the delivery by the Fairey Aviation Company of a number of high speed "Fox" bi-planes, and follows rapidly upon an order placed by Belgium with the same Company for forty-five Firefly single-seater craft.

The total value of the two orders considerably exceeds £300,000. —British Wireless.

REMAINS OF IRISH ROYALTY.

INTERESTING DISCOVERY BY ANTIQUARIANS.

London, Jan. 4.

Remains two thousands years old have been found on Sheehy Mountain, near Carrick-on-Shannon in Ireland.

After removing hundreds of tons of rock and rubble and block dressed masonry weighing ten tons, barring the entrance, antiquarians found in a Royal vault skeletons of the King and Queen facing towards the former Royal Seat of Tara.

Treasure and armour are believed to be concealed in another chamber. —British Wireless.

AMY JOHNSON MAKES FORCED LANDING.

PLANE DAMAGED: FLIER UNHURT.

DRIVEN MILES OUT OF COURSE.

MRS. HART'S FATE.

Encountering another spell of treacherous weather in the course of her attempted flight to Peking, Miss Amy Johnson made a forced landing to the north of Warsaw yesterday. Her plane was damaged, but Amy escaped without injury. She had been forced miles out of her course by five winds.

Under-carriage Smashed.

Anxious enquiries revealed that the famous aviator was unhurt, but the under-carriage of her Gipsy Moth machine was smashed.

Later.

Miss Amy Johnson is now in Warsaw, having left her plane for the night abandoned in the field where she came down.

Engine Trouble and Fog.

Engine trouble and fog caused the mishap. After assistance was forthcoming, she was taken to the house of a priest, and managed to get into telephonic communication with the British Embassy at Warsaw.

She announced her intention of proceeding to Warsaw by train, but the Embassy despatched a fast motor-car to bring her to the Polish capital.

Amy Interviewed.

In an interview, Miss Johnson said she encountered extremely bad weather immediately she left Berlin. Adverse winds drove her steadily northwards, and she was forced to land in a small field on very rough ground. The under-carriage was badly damaged.

It is not stated whether or not she will resume her flight. Repairs to the under-carriage would take some little time. —Reuter.

"Trade Wind's" Return.

New York, Jan. 4.

The news of the safe arrival of the amphibian plane "Trade Wind" at the Hampton Road air base brought much relief to friends and relatives of the daring flier, Mrs. Beryl Hart, of New York, and Lieut. W. S. MacLaren.

They set out on Saturday morning, with Bermuda as their destination, carrying a quantity of goods. They planned to make the Atlantic crossing in three hops, New York-Bermuda, Bermuda-Azores, Azores-Paris, and their arrival at Hampton Roads was a surprise.

Accident to Sextant.

It appears that an accident to the sextant and a complete change round of the wind caused the "Trade Wind" pilots to turn back and make Hampton Roads. They had been flying for fifteen hours when they landed.

Another Woman Flier.

Berlin, Jan. 4.

The German aviatrix, Elli Bohnhorn, took off in a light aeroplane from Staaken, near Spandau, this morning on a flight to West Africa, via Spain and Morocco, for the purpose of joining Professor Struck's scientific expedition in Portuguese West Africa. —Reuter.

THE ROUND TABLE CONFERENCE.

RESPONSIBILITY OF THE EXECUTIVE.

London, Jan. 3.
Yesterday the Round Table Conference reached a very important stage in its discussions and progress in the last few days has been such as to give hope of an early and favourable conclusion to its proceedings. A good number of Indian delegates have arranged to return home towards the end of January.

A leader in the Times this morning reviews the progress made and refers particularly to the impression in some quarters that the conference is procrastinating or failing. It states that the delegates themselves are not dissatisfied nor dependent and informed outsiders can only be amazed by what,
in fact, has been achieved. No Conference in all history was ever faced with problems so colossal, complicated and independent.
Thanks to the Statutory Commission report and other documents
the basis of discussion was ready but even so, and allowing for the "infinite variety of interests represented and the gift of oratory possessed by most of their exponents," it must remain a remarkable accomplishment that a bare month
and a half should have produced
so large a measure of agreement about so many elements in the future constitution of India.

Future of Burma.

The question of Burma is practically decided and the contentious problem of the North-West Frontier, has passed through Sub-Committee with a minimum of reservations. Reports exist on future franchise and provincial constitution. The Times believes that the "Hindu Moslem Tension, strained
almost beyond endurance by partisan propaganda from India, show signs of yielding to generous statesmanship," and adds: "let it never be forgotten that the business of the Round Table is not to produce a draft constitution in detail but to set before Parliament in outline the largest possible
area of common ground."

Many difficult problems remain and that a federal structure including the vital question of the character of the Central Executive and responsibility to the Central Legislature will take a few more days in committee though they were squarely faced in proper sequence yesterday. "These difficulties are not removed but are very materially diminished by the new prospect of an All-India Federation as an immediate possibility. The changes of a stable legislature are far greater than they were and the whole trend of Round Table discussion has been to reveal a unanimous agreement on the necessity for a strong government. Nor does anyone seriously challenge the case for what are commonly called reservations and safeguards, which was admitted with utmost frankness
by Sir Tej Sahra yesterday."

The Times leader points out that whole theory of the Round Table was that it was a common meeting ground of fellow workers on equal terms and claims for the conference the valuable result of bringing all its members down from the clouds. The habit of working together has grown, and there is incomparably less of that suspicion which Lord Sankey has deprecated as an impossible foundation for future peace. It concludes: "The Conference may fairly claim that it has neither wasted time nor avoided crucial issues."—British Wireless.

NAVY BEAT ARMY.

Tables Turned in the Afternoon Races.

The Royal Navy defeated the Army yesterday, in the annual sailing races held under the auspices of the R.H.K. Yacht Club. It was a most enjoyable event. The military team, despite being in a supposedly unaccustomed element, had a fair lead in the morning, but the naval men wiped out the deficit in the afternoon, and won by the narrow margin of 4 points.

The Army team were the guests of Commodore A. H. Walker and officers of the Navy team atiffin aboard H.M.S. Tamar.

Course of the day were Commodore Walker and Lt. Col. W. N. Stokes.

Detailed results were as follow:

CAPE TO CAIRO ROUTE.

INAUGURAL FLIGHT OVER FIRST SECTION.

London, Jan. 3.

The Imperial Airways announce that 2,670 miles of the North Africa section of the London to Capetown air route will be opened on Thursday, March 5, with an inaugural flight from Cairo to Mwanza, Tanganyika Territory. The flight through from London to Mwanza covers a distance of 5,100 miles and will take nine days, against 24 days by surface transport.

The North Africa section between Cairo and Khartoum will be operated by machines of the Armstrong Siddeley Argosy type, and strong "Calcutta" flying boats will carry on the route to Kishumu and Mwanza along the Nile and African lakes.

It is hoped that by May 1931 the full 8,000 miles from London to Capetown will be in operation, bringing London within eleven days of Capetown.—British Wireless.

CINEMA NOTES.

"UNHOLY THREE" CHANEY'S ONLY TALKIE.

A voice that the world has been waiting over a year to hear speaks from the screen at the Queen's Theatre where Lon Chaney will appear in his first and only talkie, "The Unholy Three."

Choice of his famous silent success for his debut as a vocal screen star was happy, for it enables Chaney to use five different voice disguises. In fact, it is as difficult for his fans to guess what his voice really sounds like as it is to guess what the make-up master's face is really like, when not disguised.

The new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer mystery thriller deals with the story of a ventriloquist, giant and midwife in a circus, who band together in one of the strangest plots ever seen on film or stage.

Chaney's voice is probably baritone—at least two of his voice disguises were in the bass and baritone class. His impersonation of the old woman, with the reedy feminine voice of old age, was startling in its naturalness. One could hardly believe that the ventriloquist, creature was a man. The ventriloquist act, with Chaney carrying on a conversation with himself via the dummy, was perfectly done.

Aside from the interest in Chaney's voice, "The Unholy Three" is a magnificent piece of entertainment, moving at a lightning pace, and with never a slack moment or lull in the gripping air of mystery.

Lila Lee, as the heroine, plays a "hardboiled" role until the final love sequences, and runs the entire gamut of human emotions in a splendid performance, and Elliot Nugent, as the clerk, Hector, gives a finely-balanced impersonation.

"Sarah and Son."

The voice which an English dramatic critic acclaimed as the "most perfect ever projected from a London talking screen" will be heard at the Central Theatre to-day when the Paramount romance-drama, "Sarah and Son" is shown there. Gilbert Emery made a notable talking debut in "Behind That Curtain," and now he is appearing in "Sarah and Son."

Emery is cast as John Ashmore, the wealthy man who, with his childless wife, adopted the infant child of Sarah Storm (played by Ruth Chatterton) after Sarah's malicious husband steals the baby away from her. The plot concerns Sarah's struggle upward from poverty and obscurity. Fired by the ambition to regain her young son, she at last achieves personal success. How she retrieves her son from the intriguing foster-parents provides the stirring climax of the picture.

Fredric March supports Miss Chatterton in the leading male romantic role. Others in the cast are Fuller Mellish, Jr., Doris Lloyd, William Stock and Philippe de Lacy.

"Follies of 1930."

The "full house" sign was much in evidence at the Queen's Theatre yesterday, when the New Movietone Follies of 1930 provided the main attraction. The film is a revue linked up to a romantic story, and chief interest centers in the various turns by well-known stars. El Brendel leads the notable cast and is always in the picture, causing great amusement by his whimsical antics. He gets fine support from Marjorie White, the versatile little blonde, who can always be depended upon to keep the fun going. Noel Francis, Miriam Seeger and William Collier, Jr., also materialize in help in putting over this bright and cheery show. There is plenty of humour, good solo and chorus work, and any number of effective dance ensembles. It is a bright and happy show, which can be well recommended.

WEIHAIWEI TO-DAY.

SOLDIERS' MEMORIALS TORN DOWN.

Peking, Jan. 3.
The Chinese in Wei-hai-wei, since the taking over of the territory from Britain, have been pulling down many tablets and monuments erected under the British regime. Some were put up by Chinese to ex-Governors, and others were erected to the officers and men of various regiments who died there.—Reuter.

WOMEN'S WORLD FOR OUR LADY READERS.

For the House and Out of Doors.

The dainty blouse of white silk or satin, adorned with cascading frills or delicate hand-embroidery, is worn with a black satin skirt to form a pretty "uniform" for afternoons at home. A very smart ensemble for wear out of doors is developed in red and grey French featherweight tweed; this comprises flared skirt, cut-away waistcoat, and caped coat, and is worn with a red crepe blouse and a red felt hat.

WEDDING VEILS.

Coloured Ones, the Latest.

Colour for the bride! And not the hint of colour, which went hand-in-hand with the old song, "Something borrowed, something blue." That blue was hidden under layers of snowy petticoats and ruffles. More often than not, it was no more than a bow of blue ribbon on a garter or on lingerie.

No, indeed, to-day's bride, with a yearning for colour, steps to the altar in a coloured wedding dress instead of traditional white. Here is another place where originality and personal preference are taking the place of age-old custom.

The new bride can have her wedding dress and veil of pink, blue, or green. A pink bride, who was recently married at the Madeleine Church, was a most sophisticated little person.

Dignity marked her costume of shell-pink satin, cut on Princess lines, with a train shaped like a calla lily.

The skirt of this gown was trimmed with garlands of white roses. The veil of rose-pink tulle was draped about the head, and held together by a few roses, giving a charming effect.

Coloured Slippers.

The vogue for wearing coloured slippers with black or white dresses is very marked. Generally, the shoes are matched exactly to the colour of the jewellery worn, turquoise, ruby, emerald, and sapphire being the most popular hues chosen.

Very Charming.

The charm of silk net is demonstrated in this exquisite little dance dress, which has a cross-over fitting bodice finished with a frilled sash, and a full skirt deeply gauged at the top to suggest a fitting hip-yoke.

YOUR CHILDREN.

[By Olive Roberts Barton.]

The 6-year-old is a complex being with diverse interests, extensive knowledge and with a hundred fully developed emotions and impulses.

Moreover he stands out now as an individual separated from other 6-year-olds by his own personality and behaviour.

All children diverge from the centre of a circle. The baby is the centre. During babyhood there is a certain similarity of evolution. Children develop along generally parallel lines. But difference in environment and training, their own innate characteristics—call it heredity—emotional high points, bring out each child in clear relief from his neighbours.

He now is a person of independent thought and behaviour, a little bark lurching itself on the big ocean of life, but sea-worthy at that.

That he needs steering must more than ever be emphasized, that he needs every kind of intelligent help he can get goes without saying, but let him sail under his own sail as himself. Don't tie him to the big ship and tow him.

Reservations to Independence.

Independence is the keynote of character, but it must be independence that recognizes authority and knows the meaning of quiet and cheerful obedience. Also it must be the independence that recognizes the rights of others, and an obligation to others.

In other words, the child must now be seriously treated as a member of society, and taught that society expects him to play his part.

School is not only a medium for gaining knowledge and developing his mental fibre; it is the greatest factor in his social development at this time.

He learns to live and let live. His school-mates represent the world of people. He will be tended, and must learn to disregard offence.

He is not first in his class. Very well, he is learning that work brings reward and that the race brings forth unguessed depths of ability and smartness. He learns to take disappointment, or should, without too much complaint.

To be a good fellow; to be unselfish, pleasant, kind and mainly gains him friends.

He learns to conform to life in general and care should be taken at this time to emphasize the advantages of his contacts with other children and discourage any less fortunate traits that may crop up.

Teach him to like people. Teach him to believe them and to bear with them. And tell him that no matter what others do he always must be fine himself.

ELECTRIC HEATERS.

Unobtrusive electric heaters are tubular in shape and fitted to the skirting board. Installation is the work of a few hours.

They can be controlled to switch off automatically when a certain temperature is attained, and to switch on again as the heat of the house falls below a given point.

RACKETEERING IN U.S.

GRAND JURIES FOR NEW YORK.

New York, Nov. 24.
A sufficient number of people have now testified how they have been victimised by racketeers to warrant the convening of special grand juries, according to the New York District Attorney, Mr. Thomas Crain. He states that three regular grand juries will be assigned to hear such cases in November, and that four will be summoned for that purpose alone during December.

The Citizens' Committee which Mr. Crain organised last week will meet again to-morrow to hear the first-hand experiences of some racketeering victims and to try to convince them to tell their stories to the grand jury. It will be the chief object of the committee to convince the victims that public sentiment is behind the campaign to end racketeering and to overcome their fear of reprisals if they speak.

Since the campaign opened Mr. Crain has been receiving many complaints daily, a number of them anonymous, that the racketeers collect eight cents a hundredweight on all perishable freight loaded into vans at the railway terminal.

A letter signed "One who has had to pay" stated: "The receiver of the freight can send his own men to load the vans, but eight cents a hundredweight will be collected just the same. If the money is not paid someone will go to

REUTER IN BRIEF.

Five European Wesleyan missionaries, three of whom were women, were motoring near Opobo, East Nigeria, when they were attacked by natives. One lady was injured by a stone and was removed to the hospital at Port Harcourt.

It is reported that natives have fired arrows at motor cars travelling in the Opobo area, which was the scene of rioting in December, 1929.

In accordance with the recommendation of the Red Cross Empire Conference in London yesterday, an Empire Committee has been formed to promote an annual Red Cross Day throughout the Empire on May 12, the birthday of Florence Nightingale, and generally to assist the Society.

The South African Labour Party Conference, after a discussion lasting eleven hours, has decided to terminate the pact with the Nationalist Party within a year.

MONDAY, JAN. 5, 1931.

THE TENSION IN EUROPE.

In expressing the view that Europe is drifting swiftly to the most perilous situation since the Great War, the Daily Herald is doubtless sounding a warning note
rather than seeking to raise alarmist fears. A sense of its responsibility as the organ of the Government would naturally deter
it from scare-mongering. It has been said that the surest way to create a war is to talk of one, and whilst there may be a substratum of truth in this saying, it is important that timely notice should be taken of developments which in any way tend in this direction. At the same time, it is regrettable that the New Year should open with any clouds on the horizon, the more so since so much effort has been expended during 1930 on measures for the prevention of armed conflict.

The immediate cause of the Daily Herald's comment is to be found in the New Year utterances of the German Defence Minister
and of Signor Mussolini. Dr.
Groener, in referring to what he describes as the intolerable burden imposed in Germany by the Young reparations plan, merely reiterates
what he and other German leaders have often said. It is the Italian Premier who has added fuel to the fire by asserting that he is prepared to support Germany on the armaments question and in demanding a revision of the Peace Treaties. Signor Mussolini has again and again indulged in bellicose utterances within the past few months, seldom losing an opportunity to do a little sabre-rattling. He has glibly talked of other nations preparing for war and of the necessity of Italy being prepared to meet danger from without. This idea seems to be an obsession with him. To the outside observer, he appears to be itching for war, and the spirit which he reflects is apparent also in the Fascist movement in Italy and elsewhere. The failure of Italy and France to come to an agreement on naval disarmament

has but served to increase European tension, in which connexion
the French attitude towards Germany has not been altogether helpful. In the circumstances, therefore, it is, perhaps, hardly surprising that attention should be drawn to the danger of antagonism developing on the Continent in a manner sufficient to cause some concern. It is true, as Field Marshal Sir William Robertson said
the other day, that war as a means of settling international disputes is now more universally condemned than ever before, but we should be shutting our eyes to the facts if we did not concede that there is in some quarters a lack of sincerity in the lip-service which is paid to pacifism. When we bear in mind that practically all the nations of the world have sworn to outlaw war, the hesitancy to embark on general disarmament would appear to need some explaining. Sir William Robertson was again perfectly true when he asserted that the maintenance of great and costly armaments is not the first essential measure required to prevent war and added that less jealousy and less selfishness in the conduct of international affairs is far more important. Not until that spirit is adequately forthcoming will disarmament follow and the nations of the world at last be on the road to peace and goodwill.

Unhappily, whilst there are in all nations leaders of public thought who realise the utter futility of war, and who never lose an opportunity of preaching the gospel of peace, there are others who exploit every possible occasion to put forward the view that man is a fighter and wars are inevitable. If this latter view is allowed to dominate mankind, it will be a sad reflection on civilisation. Memories must indeed be short if we are so soon to forget the horrors of the Great War
and its failure to settle anything whatsoever. The need of the times is an intensive cultivation of higher and better ideals than those represented by senseless slaughter. Let us hope that peace-loving instincts will prevail and that, so far from tending in the other direction, the year we have now entered upon will be marked by a great and lasting urge toward the pacific settlement of all problems as they present themselves.

PRETTY WEDDING.

MR. L. WEILL AND MISS
V. M. JEFFORD.

Dressed in a lovely medieval gown of ivory chiffon velvet, close fitting in design, Miss Veronica Marjorie Jefford looked a charming bride on the occasion of her marriage to Mr. Leo Weill, which took place in the Ohel Leah Synagogue on Sunday. The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Rahamin Lazare, in the presence of a large congregation.

The bride is the only child of
Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jefford, of 17,
Prince Edward Road, Kowloon,
and for the occasion was attended by a small girl and boy as train-bearers, with Mr. Harry Joseph as "best man".

With her gown, Miss Jefford
wore a very long square train, hung from the shoulders, of ivory satin lined with cau de ruse and bordered with small rhinestones.
This was held out by her attendants by means of long ribbons of orange blossom attached to the lower corners. In addition she wore a lace cap, with a coronet of orange blossom, from which fell a long tulle veil, bordered with the same lace. Her bouquet was a sheaf of white orchids.

Fay Carlo, one of her attendants,
wore a frock of green tulle trimmed with silver lace and a lace
cap, while David Odell had a white satin blouse with green velvet knickers and cap. Fay also carried a posy of yellow African daisies.

Pun U district scholars which Mr.
Lau has undertaken to endow.

Detective Sergeant Goodwin
made an application before Mr.
Butters, at Kowloon this morning,
for one week's formal remand in the case in which Fong Fiang and others not in custody were charged with having on March 27, 1929,
entered the second floor of No. 60, Lai Chi Kok Road, armed with two pistols and two daggers and having assaulted a Chinese doctor, Wong Sik-chuen, with intent to
rob. The application was granted.

Appearing on remand on a charge of being in possession of 566 morphia pills, a Chinese member of the crew of the s.s. Tai Lee was fined $500 by Mr. Lindell at the Central Police Court this morning, the alternative being three months' hard labour. In another case, a Chinese, who was arrested in Wing Shing Street with about 500 pills in his possession, was remanded by his Worship until tomorrow for the production of the analyst's certificate.

A Chinese was charged, before
Mr. Butters, at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court this morning, with the theft of a steel vice and a wrench,
the property of the Telephone Company, from 26, Cumberland Road.
A Chinese foreman, after putting up a telephone wire in the house, had thrown the tools into the garden with the intention of picking them up later, but the defendant took them away. The vice was valued at $50. A month's imprisonment was imposed.

The bride's mother was attired in a gown of silver grey chantilly lace and georgette and carried Parma violets, and the bridegroom's mother was in pale beige georgette, trimmed with ribbed fur. Her bouquet consisted of African daisies.

At the legal ceremony on Saturday, the bride was adorned in an ensemble of green, consisting of velvet skirt and short fur trimmed coat and a satin blouse, worn with close fitting hat.

A reception was held at the Jewish Recreation Club, the bride subsequently wearing a "goingaway" dress of satin trimmed with fur, with hat to match. The honeymoon is being spent at Fan-ling.

The wedding gifts were both numerous and handsome, the bride's token to the groom being a hand-painted miniature, and the bridegroom's gift to the bride a platinum and diamond bracelet.

MONTAGUE SMITH addresses a letter to OUR BULLIED M.P.s.

SIR or Madam, the country
that there is a growing suspicion that the House of Commons is ceasing to be the Voice of the People, and is becoming instead a sounding board for the Voices of Ministers and bureaucrats—a very different thing.

Since this must soon translate itself into the question: The M.P., at £400 a year, is he worth it? the time has come when you should be asking yourself some very serious questions as to your responsibility
for this state of affairs.

It does, indeed, seem paradoxical that the members of the House of Commons, which came into existence to defend the liberties of the subject, should themselves be among the most browbeaten and bullied of men.

I will not refer at length to the prohibitions that are placed upon your personal enjoyment of what is still the best club in the world—to the fact, for instance, that while you are permitted to play chess or draughts, there is a stern prohibition against a billiards table or a rubber of bridge within its walls.

What concerns the electors—and that very deeply—is the prohibitions that the Whips seek to place upon your right to a free expression of opinion as our representative.

To the Whip, whose party is his first consideration, the ideal private member is a political Robot. To be in your place to "Make a House," to be seen but not heard (save in saying "Hear, hear" or "Never, never," as occasion demands), to be counted in the right division lobby
as ordered—these are the actions to which the Whips would confine you, and if they could replace the individual by a machine they would.

But such suppression of individuality is neither to your advantage nor to ours. A system which sets the stage and the limelight perpetually for two score Front Bench speakers and keeps you silent is merely a method of preserving the vested interests of the old gang.

The best hours of the day for debate, the best for publicity—4 p.m.
to 7 p.m. and the closing hour from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m.—are occupied by too long speeches from Ministers and Opposition leaders. You, if you insist, are given time to speak
while Ministers are at dinner, when,
depressed by a lack of an audience,
you make speeches to be reported in your constituency by your local newspaper. Better far, if this be your sole object, that they should be merely handed in at the table and to the Press Gallery and taken as read.

Your control over national expenditure has long become nil. Once in the last ten years a very daring House by a division did actually refuse to sanction an estimate involving a few hundred pounds only of public money. What was the result? The Minister responsible calmly announced that the money had already been spent without your authority. A few days later the Government brought the vote in again, their Whips threatened dire pains, and penalties, and it was passed. So ended that rebellion.

You can regain control by exerting and asserting yourself. One way is by a reform of parliamentary procedure to secure the appointment of a committee of M.P.s to whom all departmental estimates shall be submitted before they are passed by the Treasury and before any money is spent.

Upon the last of your theoretical liberties—the right to introduce private motions and Bills—every Government makes encroachments without adequate protest. Every Ministry, pleading pressure of official business, seeks to shorten your time. Still, there are a few hours left in each session for you, and what use do you make of them?

The right of any private member to occupy the House by a private Bill or motion is determined by ballot. The Clerk takes a number out of a box and the Speaker calls the name of the member with whom it is identified. Then is the time for independence of action,
for bringing forward some subject
with which the country is really concerned.

What actually happens, save in very rare cases, is that the Party Whips hurry round and in the hands of the lucky member place a resolution chosen by themselves. So when his name is called and his subject demanded Mr. A. rises and says: "To call attention to the evils of Socialism, and to move a resolution"; and Mr. B. says: "To call attention to the reactionary political policy of the Conservatives, and to move a resolution."

Thus do the Whips seek to put chains upon you even when you are supposed to be free.

Nor does the supply of privileged private Bills reflect either your abilities or your opportunities.
Some of them are merely Government measures which you have been persuaded to adopt. Others are
... well, hardly what the country
expects from you.

The satirist may if he likes make fun out of the fact that the first private member's Bill introduced this session was one dealing with damage by rabbits, but the wise man will draw the moral that a certain amount of annoyance can be caused to the powers that be by the most timid of God's creatures.

At this moment the stirrings of uneasiness in the country at the creeping paralysis of Parliament have prompted Ministers to vague talk of appointing a committee to consider the procedure of the House of Commons. This is your opportunity, but it may also be your destruction.

You or the Whips will be the reformers. If the latter, then it will soon become a common thing for a Prime Minister to say, as Mr. Macdonald did recently of certain decisions for dealing with the unemployment problem: "Those are no concern of the House of Commons."

MONTAGUE SMITH.

The speaker at the Rotary meeting at Lane, Crawford's Restaurant to-morrow will be Mr. Bascom Johnson, Chairman of the League of Nations Commission of Enquiry into the Traffic in Women and Children in the East.

The competition for the month of December, at Lane, Crawford's miniature golf course, was won by Mr. F. Zimmermann, who, after tieing with Mr. A. A. Rumjahn with a score of 81, scored 46 against his opponent's 47 in the play-off.

MARSHAL JOFFRE.

KING'S MESSAGE OF SYMPATHY.

"GRAND-PERE" OF FRENCH ARMY.

MIRACLE OF MARNE.

London, Jan. 4.

The King has sent a message of sympathy to the President of the French Republic on the death of Marshal Joffre, in the course of which he says: "We shall mourn him who was called to the supreme command of the great French army, with which for four long years the forces of the British Empire were comrades in arms."

"I treasure the memory of my meetings with the Marshal on my several visits to the Front."

Madame Joffre was present at the death-bed, accompanied by her daughter and son-in-law. The Marshal passed away at 8.23 a.m. on Saturday, eight minutes after his principal medical adviser had declared that he would probably live through the day.

A State Funeral has been fixed for Wednesday.

Early in War.

Joseph Jacques Cesaire Joffre, Marshal of France (a title which had been in abeyance since 1871 and was revived in his special honour in 1916) was born in the village of Rivesaltes, of the Pyrenees-Orientales, in 1852.

Educated at the Lycee of Perpignan, he entered the Ecole Polytechnique at Paris two years before the war with Prussia, when he was 16. He saw active service in command of a battery during the siege of Paris, went back to school at the end of the war, and then joined a regiment of engineers. He was promoted Captain in 1876, and remained in that rank for 14 years.

In 1885 he served in the Indo-Chinese campaign, and became Courbois's right-hand man, organising the defences of Formosa and Tongking. He was decorated and, in 1889, promoted Major. In 1892 he began the construction of the French military road from Senegal to the Niger.

Capture of Timbuctoo.

His name first came prominently before the public in 1894, when he occupied Timbuctoo, after a long campaign against the Touaregs. He was promoted Lieutenant-Colonel, and received the Legion of Honour. After serving as Secretary to the Commission on Inventions, he was sent to Madagascar, where he constructed the harbour and ports of Diego Suarez.

Returning to France he became Professor at Ecole de Guerre, was made Brigadier-General in command of the artillery (1901), and Governor of Lille and General of Division in 1905. In 1909 he was appointed Commander of the Second Army at Amiens and Inspector of Military Schools. In 1911 he was appointed Chief of the General Staff, an appointment implying supreme command in time of war.

Distinguished for his simplicity of character and life, alertness and clearness of mind, and organising power, he exhibited a combination of intuition and reflection, and took a wide outlook, without being obsessed by details. He was remarkable for his sound common-sense, and was known by his soldiers as "Grand-pere."

From the outbreak of the Great War until December, 1916 he was Commander-in-Chief of the French armies, holding this position through the black period of the war, which began with the terrible defeat of the French at Charleroi, and was followed by the long retreat to beyond the Marne.

"Miracle of the Marne."

While France and Europe seemed to be in the direct peril, he was the one man who remained cool and unfurried, and he quietly organised the "Miracle of the Marne." The full story of this early period of the war has yet to be given to the world, and widely different opinions prevail as to the precise reasons for the German retreat, but nothing can rob Joffre of his glory as the "Man of the Marne."

On his retirement in December, 1916, he was appointed the Chief Technical Adviser to the Allied Forces, and in April, 1917, he was sent to America with Viviani and others on a special mission.

British Honours.

He was a member of the French Academy, and published a few books dealing with his early experiences in the French Army, particularly in Timbuctoo and Madagascar. He was also responsible for some authoritative volumes on Mons and the Marne. He was a distinguished mathematician.

QUAKE AT CORINTH.

SOME DAMAGE DONE BUT NO FATALITIES.

Athens, Jan. 4.

An earthquake has destroyed a number of houses in Corinth. The inhabitants are in a panic, and are remaining in the open air.

No fatalities are so far reported.—Reuter.

PARIS TO SAIGON.

AIR MAIL LINE ON 12 DAYS SERVICE.

Paris, Jan. 3.

A Paris to Saigon air line was opened by the departure at 10.30 this morning of a three engined monoplane on a journey that is scheduled to take twelve days.—Reuter.

He was honoured by Britain with the G.C.B. in 1914 and the Order of Merit in 1919.

Charm of Manner.

Free from all vanity unassuming in his bearing, simple in his tastes, courteous, eager to praise and slow to blame, scrupulously fair and strictly just, eminently sincere and loyal, Marshal Joffre possessed a charm of manner which none could resist who approached him.

When, a month after war had been declared, on September 6, the Army Order was read to the French retreating troops in which General Joffre cried "Halt!" his voice rang through the whole of the Army and made of every man a hero. During a whole fortnight, day and night, the soldiers of France had been fighting desperately upon the losing side, the foe was fast marching upon Paris, and 1870 cast its red shadow upon many ruined villages; hope was ebbing fast in anxious hearts, and faith was tottering in doubtful souls; then above the thundering roar of the cannon came Joffre's bugle call "En Avant!" "Now," said he to his men, "now is the time and the opportunity to save France; let all advance who can; let all who cannot advance die where they stand!" Exhausted and half-dazed by fatigue, heat, and lack of food and sleep, the men halted, and then went forward. Joffre's name alone raised the spirits of the weary, march-worn soldiery, and his message sank deep in their hearts.

All for France.

The love which the French soldier bore Joffre and the blind confidence which he placed in the great chief were fully deserved and amply repaid. General Joffre, too, loved and trusted his men. Never since the day when he entered "Polytechnique" in 1868 did Joffre grudge anything to France. His time and work, his whole mind and heart, were devoted to her service and wrapped up in her; his life he many times risked and would willingly have laid down for her; honours he never sought and still less riches, but never did miser hold more lovingly, nor more jealously preserve, gold pieces in his clutches than General Joffre the lives of his men.

Great as was General Joffre by his deeds, he was still greater by what he forbore doing; and great as was his strength, his patience was greater still.

Scientific Warrior.

Order, method and persistency were the key-notes of his success. He was not the dashing soldier, either in appearance or in his plans of campaign. He disclaimed chance and was incredulous about sudden flashes of inspiration. He thought that war belonged to science and was to be scientifically conducted. His idea was to prepare everything, to leave nothing to chance. Every detail was studied, every point made clear.

His strategy was compounded of common sense, of the infinite precaution that comes from foreseeing everything, and that quality of racial courage and endurance which underlaid everything he did. He was southern in the sense that at the critical moment, the moment of supreme danger, his nature was quickened into that bold, decisive action which carried success with it as irresistibly as the mountain torrent sweeps a path for itself after the rains.

He has been likened, very happily, to Turanne. He had the same sobriety, the same cool, calm temper of mind, the same command over himself; of him it might be said, as of the "great Marshal," "He was accustomed to fight without anger, to conquer without ambition, to triumph without vanity."

The British Ambassador will represent the King at the funeral; Field Marshals Milne and Allenby, the British Army; Admiral of the Fleet, Lord Ceston, the Navy, and Air Marshals, Sir Hugh Trenchard, the Royal Air Force. There will be detachments of the Guards, with a band, also a detachment of the Air Force.

CAR AND RICKSHA COLLISION.

ACTION AGAINST PRISON OFFICER FAILS.

NO DAMAGE PROVED.

The action recently heard against Principal Printing Officer A. B. Didsbury, Victoria Gaol, for $500 damages, arising out of a collision between Mr. Didsbury's car and a ricksha, was decided in the Summary Court this morning, when Mr. Justice Jacks delivered a written judgment in favour of defendant. Plaintiff was Mr. B. Kawahara, proprietor and licensee of an eating house at No. 19, Peking Road, Kowloon, who was a passenger in the ricksha.

Mr. F. C. E. Rendall was for plaintiff and Mr. F. X. D'Almada, Junior, defended.

Giving judgment, his Lordship said:—The plaintiff claims that he has suffered damage from the defendant's negligence in driving his car, No. 2807, in such a manner as to collide with great force with public ricksha No. 489, in which the plaintiff was being driven in Queen's Road East on October 12, 1930, causing personal injuries to the plaintiff.

The plaintiff was, in consequence, put to expense in medical attendance and massage treatment, and was also prevented from following his occupation. The plaintiff was unable to state how the accident occurred and he did not call any evidence to prove negligence on the part of the defendant.

Onus of Proof.

After recounting the facts as given in evidence, his Lordship said:—In cases of this kind the onus of proving negligence is on the plaintiff, but he contended first, that on December 18 the defendant's solicitor paid a sum of $12.60 into Court "being the amount admitted to be due to the plaintiff," and the admission that anything is due on a claim for negligence is an admission of the negligence in which the claim is founded. The defendant's solicitor stated that he had no intention of admitting negligence, but his client thought it was only fair that he should pay the plaintiff's doctor's bill.

The letter accompanying this "payment in" was unfortunate, for if there was no intention to admit negligence, the payment should have been made with a denial of liability. I did not believe the defendant intended to admit negligence, but I reserved my decision on the point, though under my general power to rectify errors, I could have allowed the defendant to amend his payment in by adding a denial of liability. This has been done in Higher Courts in similar cases (Davis v. Scott, Lewis 1918, W. N. 1667); but this might have involved an adjournment. I decided to proceed with the hearing in order that I might see for myself whether the exclusion of the admission would in any way prejudice the plaintiff's case, but in view of the plaintiff's next contention I do not believe he had any intention of proving negligence on the part of the defendant, even if he could do so, for his second contention was that this case is governed by the maxim res ipsa loquitur and that it was for the defendant to rebut the allegation of negligence, not for the plaintiff to prove it. He cited the case of Byrne v. Bondle in support of this contention, but that case does not apply here, for in that case the plaintiff, whilst exercising his public right to use the highway, was injured by a defendant in the exercise of a private right.

The Law of the Road.

The maxim res ipsa loquitur does not apply to an accident on a highway. Those who go on a highway, or have their property adjacent, and sustain personal injury, or suffer damage to their property lying beside it, can only show a right to recover by affirmative evidence of fault in the person doing the damage. The fact of an accident raises no presumption. A man crossing the road is knocked down by a cart. Merely to prove this shows no cause of action. The plaintiff must go further and specify some breach of duty on the part of the defendant—the cart was driven too fast, was on the wrong side of the road, or swerved, or was not properly constructed, or was overloaded, hence the accident.

It is as much the duty of foot passengers attempting to cross the road to look out for passing vehicles as it is the duty of drivers to see that they do not run over foot passengers. The pullers of rickshas have duties whilst using the highway as well as the drivers of motor cars. There must be evidence from which a jury might reasonably and properly conclude that there was negligence. Lord Justice Blackburn has dealt very fully with this point in the well known case of Rylands v. Fletcher. In the case before me both parties had an equal right to the use of the highway, both were exercising that right. The onus of proof is on the plaintiff. He has not proved negligence, and had no intention of proving it, so that in "ruling out" the alleged admission on the part of the defendant the plaintiff's case had not been prejudiced.

Lack of Proof.

Further, the plaintiff's claim for damage rests entirely on his own evidence and a not very convincing certificate given by a doctor who stated that the plaintiff "showed signs and symptoms of injuries to the soft tissues at the back of the neck." This does not appear serious and the doctor did not appear to think so either, for he only saw the plaintiff once. The doctor was not called to state the nature of the injuries, how they might have been caused and what remedy he recommended. I am not satisfied that he ordered a course of massage, neither am I satisfied on the evidence, that the plaintiff was incapacitated for work.

There is nothing in the plaintiff's evidence to connect his injuries with the mishap in Queen's Road beyond the fact that he saw a doctor on the day it occurred. In fact, if I am to believe the evidence of the defendant, and I see no reason why I should not, the plaintiff suffered no injury at all. It is possible that the plaintiff's story is true, that he did suffer injury which necessitated a visit to the doctor, that the doctor recommended a course of massage, and that the plaintiff was incapacitated for 17 days and lost business as the result of it, but the evidence he gave does not convince me. It is all very well for him to come here and tell me his story, but I want more than this. I want proof before I make another man pay for all this.

So that quite apart from the question of negligence I find that the plaintiff has not proved that he has suffered any damage. I give judgment for the defendant with costs, and order payment out to him of the $12.60 which he was paid into Court.

then disappeared towards the kitchen. Marks of blood.

After a few minutes, the wife got up and went to the door and saw the deceased lying in the passage way.

Mr. Murphy drew his Worship's attention to some blood marks shown in photographs on the stairs and mentioned that this suggested that the deceased had probably gone towards the steps and then fallen backwards. It was believed that he was dead when his wife emerged from her room.

Continuing, Mr. Murphy said the wife gave a minute description of the clothing that the accused was wearing at the time she saw him through her bedroom door, and she was positive he was the man she had seen.

Resuming his story, Mr. Murphy said that after the wife had found her husband lying in the passage, she raised the alarm and the master of the house went down. The police were then communicated with.

Accused Traced.

As a result of a statement made by the woman to the cook when he arrived on the scene, the police went to 28, Kennedy Road, where the accused had been employed as No. 1 "boy" for about a month before the crime. The accused occupied a room which he normally slept in by himself, but on the night in question there were two male servants, friends of the cook, sharing his room.

The defendant and the other servants retired at midnight on December 12, and at about 3 o'clock in the morning one of the occupants of the room would tell the Court that the defendant got up, and, after putting on his clothes, went out alone. He returned again shortly after six o'clock. He then went to his room and lay down in his bed.

He was arrested when the police arrived at about 7 o'clock. He was sleeping in the clothes he had gone out in, and these corresponded with the description given by the deceased's wife.

Bloodstains Found.

The defendant was taken to the No. 7 Police Station where he was examined by Chief Detective Inspector Reynolds. A certain deposit on his left finger-nail aroused the suspicion of the officers, who found further similar red deposits on two other fingers. At about 9 o'clock, the accused was taken to the Bacteriological Institute and there examined by Dr. D. Laing, who removed the deposits and found them to be blood. There was also a small abrasion on the middle finger of accused's left hand. On his trousers, bloodstains were also found.

An exhaustive search was made, but the instrument with which the fatal injury through the heart was inflicted, could not be found. The hearing was adjourned.

RECREIO'S FIGHT AGAINST SOUTH CHINA.

MISSED CHANCES.

[By "Wanderer."]

The most surprising happening in local football on Saturday was the failure of Chinese Athletic to defeat the Club. The Club caught them on an off-day, gave a more than usually efficient defensive display and were within an ace of snatching a victory on more than one occasion in the last quarter of an hour.

In obtaining a point, the Club did South China a good turn, and the Caroline Hill side are now fast staving off the possibility of a challenge for the leadership, though their win against the Club de Recreio was not very impressive.

Kowloon defeated St. Joseph's and the Police conceded two goals to the Argyle without reply. In the second division, Eastern got to the head of the table for the first time in their history. The full results are appended:

RECREIO'S MISTAKE. Fail to Maintain Early Promise.

In the absence of A. V. Gosano, the Club de Recreio were conceded very little chance of upsetting South China. They caused much anxiety to South China by their brilliant shock tactics in the early stages, however, and but for an error of judgment by Xavier who decided to bring B. Gosano from the wing to the inside-right position, a different conclusion might have been anticipated.

South China won by three goals to one, but only the third had any real merit about it, while there were occasions when Pau Kaping's charge appeared to bear a charmed life. In the first half, for instance, from a free kick (which should have been a penalty), Gosano's fast drive was charged down, Rocha shot on the turn to send the ball inside the angle of the posts, it bounced on the line and then out to Santos, whose header was marvellously saved by Pau. Rocha had similarly bad luck in the second half at the other end.

The Recreio's flashy start confounded the South China half-backs and it was fortunate from their viewpoint that Lau Mau and Li Tin-sang showed no loss of form. Even so Pau had a lot to do and it came as a surprise when South China obtained the lead as a result of a misunderstanding between the backs and the goalkeeper, the backs being chiefly to blame. The ball was punted into the goal-mouth, three South China forwards made a rush, and Xavier and Silva-Netto, ignoring their opportunities of clearing (apparently thinking that Lawrence would run out) merely tried to obstruct, Chu Kwok-luen eluded Xavier, and obtained a simple goal.

Shooting was erratic on both sides for the rest of this half, while the Recreio fell away badly. Immediately Gosano was brought inside. His brilliant centres had been a constant source of peril and had stimulated Ward and Rocha who had had something to strive for. When he came inside, the best they could manage was a short-passing system of attack down the middle, a thin-skinned sort of game against such fine covering backs as Li and Lau.

Ward equalised for the Recreio ten minutes after the restart following Pau's failure to hold a shot by Rocha, and the splendid work of Xavier, principally, and his colleagues in defence, enabled the Recreio to hold South China at bay until ten minutes from the end. A corner gave a goal to Fung King-cheong, though Lawrence had every opportunity to punch clear, and three minutes later, Chan Yu-tim was presented with an open goal and made no mistake.

South China were certainly the better set of players, but were far from impressive and will need to inculcate more method about their attack if they hope to maintain their present record of success. The respective defences were far more efficient than the forwards, who expected to accomplish what was required of them by dash alone.

The Recreio deserve great praise for the way they tackled South China in a game full of interest, and it was rather a pity that Xavier did not leave his forward line alone. He was the outstanding player on the field, incidentally.

CLUBS' POINT.

Goalless Draw With The Athletic.

If the Club's front line could get into complete working order, the team would have excellent prospects of climbing out of the ruck. In the game with Chinese Athletic, there was very little wrong with the defence, which mastered the lively opposition attack so completely for the most part, that the Club were fully entitled to their share of the spoils.

The home team did the bulk of the pressing, and Roger had plenty of work to do, though McBride, Stewart and Duncan tackled and covered so well that Suen Kam-shun and his partners were rattled into wild shooting, even when excellent combination had carried them into the penalty area. Strange and McBride bottled up the left wing pretty effectively and the right did not get sufficient of the ball to offer a serious threat.

Forward, the Club were less effective. They were great triers, but they failed to get together as a line and individualism did not pay. Towards the close, Chan Shek-pui was hotly engaged and it looked likely that a dramatic goal would give the Club success, but the resourceful work of Lai Yuktant and Chan's steadiness in goal averted disaster. Lam Yik-ying was outstanding in a sound half-back line and Suen was the most enterprising forward, despite his loss of speed. Lim (from St. Joseph's) came into the front rank for the first time but he did not make a success of the leadership.

ODD GOAL VICTORY.

Kowloon Miss A Penalty Against St. Joseph's.

Kowloon dominated the game with St. Joseph's in the first half. St. Joseph's finding progress against the opposing defence very difficult. Kowloon scored through Grimwood after five minutes, missed a penalty (Grimwood) after fifteen minutes, and became two up when Simpson scored after 25 minutes. Other chances were allowed to go begging and before the interval, Leonard burst through to obtain St. Joseph's goal.

Some bright play was witnessed in the second half. St. Joseph's making a big effort while Kowloon were resting on their laurels. Angus and the men in front of him were equal to the emergency, however, and before the end Kowloon were again definitely on top.

POLICE DEFEATED.

Highlanders Play Better Football.

The Police put up a great struggle, but the Argyle were the more polished side and their 2-0 victory was well deserved. The Argyle made further radical changes in their attack which were not wholly a success, the shooting being very poor for the most part, though the combination was good.

Lowden scored the opening goal ten minutes before the interval and McDunna obtained the second on the stroke of time. Clarke, Perkins and Shepherd were prominent in the Police defence, while Pile did well in the forward line. Hunter, in the Argyle goal, had few direct shots to save, the half-back line, generally speaking, being much too good for the Police attack.

Hughes and McKenna worked well together on the Scots' right wing, and the other forwards put in lots of effort.

DOBSON LEAVES IT TOO LATE.

EASY VICTORY FOR LAKE IN TITLE BOUT.

CRICHTON ALSO WINS.

[By "Wanderer."]

His Excellency the Governor and Sir Miles Lampson, British Minister in China, were members of the crowded audience at the City Hall on Saturday evening, when two reigning boxing champions, Stoker Perry Lake and Jock Crichton, resisted challenges with comparative ease.

Lake's marked superiority over Dobson in the lightweight bout came rather as a shock. Adopting new line of tactics, he took Dobson right out of his stride, and before the Thracian man had adjusted himself, already had the verdict in his pocket.

When winning the title, Lake was content to use the ring, allowing Dobson to do the bulk of the pressing. On Saturday, Lake carried the fight to his opponent from the very first round, peppering him with snappy rights and lefts, avoiding almost clumsy counters with beautiful footwork, and then going in again to deal out more punishment until Dobson was thoroughly rattled and did not appear sure as to whether he was on his head or his heels.

Lake showed his championship ability by his swift changes in tactics which completed Dobson's discomfiture, and he won eight rounds in a row by the widest margin. In the ninth, he walked into a stiff right and found it necessary to clinch, but in the tenth and eleventh he was again the master-hand doing great work with his left. Invariably he landed two blows to one in the fast exchanges and barring a K. O. the bout was over at this stage.

Dobson's Effort.

Dobson must have realised this. He sailed into his man furiously, forcing all the time. Lake's ringcraft served him in excellent stead and though looking a trifle worried, he avoided real damage.

Dobson was reckless in his efforts to land a decisive blow and received some stinging counters, Lake fighting extremely well on the defensive. There was no doubt about the verdict when the end came. Dobson had won possibly two of the fifteen rounds, Lake took the first eight beyond a shadow of a doubt. Dobson appeared to think that he had not received justice when the announcement of the verdict was made, but the fact stood out that, strongly as he fought in the closing stages, he left his twelfth round, Dobson did not look the man who had given Lake such a galling fight a month before.

The belt, which becomes Lake's property, was presented to the winner by Sir William Peel, who promised to donate a new one to the association.

Crichton's Success.

In the earlier championship fight, chiefly memorable for the manner in which Begbie stood up to a steady battery and terrific punishment without flinching, Jock Crichton retained his welterweight title without great difficulty. The possibility of a surprise loomed up just once. In the fourth round, Crichton stopped Begbie's right swing and took a nasty jolt. He had rested on the boards to a count of eight when the gong came to bring relief.

Begbie discarded any hopes his supporters may have had immediately the gong went for the fifth round. Instead of dashing in seeking to worry Crichton before he had fully recovered, Begbie hung off, leaving the initiative to Crichton, who displayed a marked improvement from this stage on, his tumble evidently providing a needed steadying effect.

In the early rounds, he had indulged in a series of wild rushes, punching with both hands, giving little consideration to defence and apparently intent upon finishing the contest early. From the fifth round onwards, Crichton continued to be the aggressor (there would have been no fight had he not, Begbie simply refusing to take the initiative) but in a more deliberate and therefore more effective way.

Crichton concentrated on a body attack and wore Begbie down with a continuous rain of blows to the heart and stomach, varied only very occasionally with a short clip to the head. Begbie replied with a few stiff body blows, but he always faded badly in work at close quarters, and did little better at range, largely because most of his efforts were in the nature of counters.

He went to the boards in the ninth round after a succession of swift blows to the head, and afterwards, each round appeared likely to be the last. Crichton punched him everywhere almost at will without making the slightest effective impression. Now and again, Begbie would drive hard for Crichton's face

D. H. Blake and Commander Priestley	also returned cards of 94.

but were ruled out owing to having highest scores over the last nine holes.

The draw for match play resulted as follows:

B. D. Evans and L. Goldman.
D. S. Robb and W. S. Hillier.
J. MacKnight and E. D. Matthews.
H. Hampton and G. E. Costello.
T. S. Whyte-Smith and C. E. Maturin.
K. K. Rounds and D. S. Edward.
W. Paterson and A. Ritchie.
O. Enger and C. H. Burton.

Captain's Cup.

There were 48 entries for the Captain's Cup Competition, and Captain W. Davison qualified with a score of 87—14=73.

Commander Priestley, Dr. C. H. Burton, D. S. Robb and H. Hampton returned net scores of 74.

or body, showing that he still had fight left in him, but in the welter of blows going the other way these were hardly noticed. The loser received as much applause as the winner on leaving the ring.

The Preliminaries.

Stoker Goddon defeated Stoker Williams on points in the first bout of the evening, which was lacking in any particular interest. Both men packed heavy punches, but Goddon was the stronger and he finished with a flourish to earn the decision.

Of quite different quality was the meeting of A. B. Francis and Seaman Kelly in a eight-round contest. Kelly made his debut in the ring at the December tournament, winning a splendid fight. On this occasion, he had to give way to an old hand of much experience, after a plucky effort. His clever footwork and double punching, effective as they were, failed to counter Francis's determination to make it a fight instead of a boxing match. Kelly, in consequence, took severe punishment, and is to be praised for the manner in which he stood up to it.

Stoker Tyzac was knocked out in the fourth round of a rough and tumble with A. B. Gowan, despite the latter's signals: "I am now about to hit with my left."

SHAMEEN FOOTBALL LEAGUE.

"SEAMEW" DEFEATS THE "TARANTULA".

Shameen, Jan. 3.

The Seamew defeated the Tarantula yesterday in the return match. The result of the first match played in November being a draw of two goals each. From the kick-off, Seamew attacked in a determined manner and kept the Tula's defence close to their home goal.

Bagshaw being called on to save several times. After about ten minutes of continued pressure round their goal, the Tula broke away and raided the Seamew's territory. The defence were equal to the attack and the goal was never in real danger. From this to the end of the first half the exchanges were fairly even and the change-over took place without either side having scored.

Early in the second half, the Seamew were attacking again and with the Tula's goalie out of position, the central forward carried the ball through the goal. The referee disallowed the point and gave a free-kick for hands. Within two minutes, Neave sent in a stinging shot which Bagshaw failed to clear properly and Hutcheon returned into the net.

Tula were now on their mettle and tried hard to equalise, forcing two corners in succession, both of which were punched out by Seamew's goalie. Returning to the attack again, Tula's centre-forward, lobbed feebly over the crossbar. Seamew now took charge of the game and Neave passed to White, who shot from the penalty spot and netted the second goal. After this the Tula worked hard but could not beat the defence and the final whistle came with the Seamew winning by two goals to nil, a well-deserved victory and their first this season.—Our Own Correspondent.

LADIES' HOCKEY MATCH.

ENGLAND AGAIN BEAT SCOTLAND.

The Hongkong Ladies' Hockey Club staged their second "international" of the season at Soekunpo on Saturday. An England won the first match by the odd goal in five the Scots were out to revenge that defeat. The teams were as follows:

England.—F. Webber, E. Gray, B. Franklin, J. Lack, B. M. Pope, F. Cousins, E. R. Bell, P. M. Goodall, E. M. Donegan, M. Smalley and M. Bishop.

Scotland.—G. E. Little, A. Nichol, B. Laid, J. L. Whyte, E. Bonnar, M. L. Wallace, I. C. Ball, N. McNeillie, A. Duncan, C. Ferguson and E. Blackburn.

It was a very hard game and most of the players felt the effects of a hot sun. There was little to choose between the teams, both defences being good and usually got the better of the forwards. For England, E. Gray and B. M. Pope played well in defence and E. Bell was the best of the forwards. E. Donegan worked hard in the centre but did not get the chances that her inside forwards got. P. M. Goodall scored the only goal with a good shot but she failed with quite a number of openings.

For Scotland, the defence was sound, the half back line, keeping position well. M. Wallace played her usual good game. The forwards played well in open, especially the two insides, C. Ferguson and N. McNeillie, whose passes across the field to the opposite wing were a source of danger to the England defence. As a line they were better than the England forwards. Neither goal-keeper had much to do, G. Little having no chance with the shot that beat her.

St. Andrew's beat Y.M.C.A.

A team from St. Andrew's Club engaged the Y.M.C.A. seconds and won by the large margin of seven goals to two, the game being played at King's Park. The winners did most of the attacking and were obviously the superior combination.

The following will represent the University first eleven against the Hongkong and Singapore Brigade today at 5 p.m., sharp on the home ground.

A. B. Suleman (Capt.), A. A. Aziz, W. A. Jones, R. E. G. Long, R. S. Ng, K. T. Loke, S. C. Ho, O. de Souza, G. E. Yeh, A. M. Rodriguez and A. Basio.

TENNIS TOURNAMENTS STARTING SOON.

CHAMPIONSHIP EVENTS TO BEGIN ON FEBRUARY 9.

The annual tennis tournaments organised by the Hongkong Cricket Club, including the Open Championship Singles and Doubles, are due to commence on February 9 and those intending to participate are notified that Saturday, January 17, is the closing day for entries.

An innovation is to be introduced in the two Open events this year in that the preliminary rounds will all be decided by the best of three sets and not five as has hitherto been the case. The semi-finals and the final, however, will be the best of five sets. The committee reserve to themselves the right to restrict the number of entries in these events if too numerous.

The usual events confined to members of the Club will also be commenced round about the same time.

LOCAL CRICKET.

CLUB'S DECISIVE VICTORY OVER NAVY.

The Hongkong C. C. defeated the Royal Navy by an innings and 113 runs in the last match of the annual triangular tournament on the home ground on Saturday.

On last Thursday's game the Club held the upper hand with a score of 350 runs for four wickets (declared) against 130 runs for nine wickets by their opponents. On the resumption of their innings the Navy increased their score by another thirteen runs when the last wicket fell.

With 213 runs in arrears, the Navy embarked upon their second venture, but fared even worse than in their first, compiling only 100 runs. Lt. Comdr. Squance and Lt. Glass gave them a good start but thereafter a rot set in and the wickets fell with regularity. Eight wickets were down for 68 runs, and it seemed unlikely that they could top the century but Jeffries came to the rescue with an invaluable knock of 27 runs, which saved the Navy from an utter collapse.

K. C. C. DEFEAT ARMY.

Two-Day Fixture Full of Bright Play.

The Kowloon C. C. defeated the Army by four wickets in their two-day fixture on the home ground, which concluded yesterday.

At the close of Saturday's play, Kowloon had established themselves in a strong position by dismissing their opponents for 117 runs and themselves scoring 91 runs without the loss of a wicket.

For the Army Pte. Salmon gave a sound display for his 41 runs. Thompson (21), Waring (16) and Munn (10) were the only other batsmen to enter double figures. Goodwin got half the wickets for 35 runs.

Bruce and Fincher gave their side a good start, but their innings yesterday both these batsmen were soon out. Bruce after adding three more to his over-night score, and Fincher seven. Thereafter consistent scoring carried the total to 228 runs. Mackay was seen to knock for 30 runs, but out. The innings was declared closed when seven wickets had fallen.

The Army, set with 111 runs to obtain to prevent an innings defeat, would have collapsed if not for an enterprising innings by Mackay, who in his first innings scored all round the wicket and was unfortunate to be run out. His invaluable knock, however, set the home side to get 86 runs for victory. Lyle bowled well to capture four wickets for 36.

With an hour left to get the runs, the Kowloon batsmen went all out for them, but at the expense of six wickets. Williams, the Army "shock" bowler, sprained his ankle in his second over and had to retire. F. Zimmer contributed 53 towards the total of 86 runs, and Bruce was undefeated with 16.

LEAGUE MATCHES.

Three Games Played on Saturday in both Divisions.

There were only three League matches during the week-end; one in the first division and two in the second.

In the First Division game, the Indian R. C. gained an overwhelming victory over the Civil Service on the latter's ground. The Indians now hold a very commanding position in the League.

A sensation was created in the Second Division, when the Civil Service obtained full points from the Indian R. C. The latter, until now, had won all their matches. In the other match the Club de Reccio gained a decisive victory over the Club.

DIVISION I.

Indian R. C. Severely Trounce Civil Service.

At Happy Valley the Indian R. C. defeated the Civil Service C. C. by nine wickets.

Playing with four of their regular men away the Civil Service were no match for the Indians, and were soon all dismissed for the paltry total of 60 runs. Out of this total Evans contributed 21, Kelly 11 and Extras 18. A. R. Munn bowled exceptionally well in his first few overs, but fell off in the last when he conceded ten runs to Kelly. He, however, captured most of the wickets, taking in all five for 24. Pereira obtained four wickets for 18 runs.

The Indian batsmen started cautiously, and though the first wicket fell cheaply, the second wicket partnership, between S. A. Ismail and A. H. Madar saw their opponents' total passed. Both batsmen played correct cricket, considering the soft wicket, and paved the way for the succeeding batsmen who took full toll of the bowling. A. A. Rummah in a stylish knock contributed 34 runs.

DIVISION II.

League Leaders Suffer Their First Defeat.

The I. R. C. second string, who had until Saturday won all their matches, were defeated by the Civil Service by 26 runs at Soekunpoo.

The visitors started well, Mathews and McGowan giving them a good start in a partnership of 32 runs for the first wicket; but all their succeeding batsmen, except Edmonds, failed to enter double figures, and the whole side was eventually dismissed for 118 runs. A. R. Saffell took three wickets for 48 runs.

It was generally expected that the Indians would easily make this total, but they failed to reach it by 20 runs. Their failure was due to the fine trundling of McGowan, who returned the fine analysis of five wickets for 17 runs. A. K. Saffell followed.

THE SECOND TEST MATCH.

ENGLAND IN DANGER OF ANOTHER DEFEAT.

England are in danger of suffering yet another defeat in South Africa in the Second Test match which is being played at Cape Town, the R. C. C. tourists having had to follow on with a deficit of 163 runs. At the close of play on Saturday the Englishmen had scored 28 runs without loss in their second innings.

The weather on Saturday was cloudy and the wicket was wearing slightly at one end. Hammond, who went to bat with Leyland first thing in the morning, having lost Wyatt the previous day, was the first to leave after the score had been taken from 98 to 120. He was caught and bowled by McMillan after he had scored 67, the second wicket falling at 120. He played a determined innings and was at the wickets for two hours and ten minutes, scoring five fours altogether. When the match was adjourned for lunch the score had been taken to 177, Leyland being 40 and Hendren 30.

On resumption there was an attendance of 10,000 present. Leyland fell after taking his score to 62, his wicket falling at 202. He gave a sound display and occupied the crease for four hours and ten minutes. His score included six fours.

Turnbull fell when the score was taken to 214 and then Chapman was dismissed without addition. Hendren and White took the score to 288 before the former was bowled. The tourists followed on and at the close of play had scored 28 runs without loss. The match is being continued to-day.

In response to a request from A. P. F. Chapman, H. W. Lee, the Middlesex batsman, who is coaching at Grahamstown, joins the R. C. C. tourists to-day, replacing A. S. S. who is suffering from a fractured bone in his ankle.

HOLDERS DEFEATED.

A Big Score by Club de Reccio.

At King's Park the Club de Reccio defeated the Hongkong C. C. by 118 runs.

An enterprising knock of 77 runs by Alves was responsible for the Club de Reccio's total of 166 runs for the loss of six wickets. Four other men entered double figures.

The Hongkong batsmen found C. M. Sousa in a very destructive mood, and were all dismissed for the paltry total of 48 runs. Sousa took six wickets for 26 runs.

University v. Kowloon.

The University second string were opposed to the Kowloon second string on the home ground, and the match ended in a draw. The Hongkong batsmen ran up a total of 167 runs for six wickets (declared). The batting was consistent, the highest being 30 runs by Aziz. The Kowloonites replied with 147 runs for four wickets. F. S. W. Smith being top scorer with 68 runs not out. G. Lee and Raven got 55 and 23 respectively.

CHINESE TALKIES.

LOCAL MERCHANTS FORM COMPANY.

A large gathering of distinguished members of the Chinese community was entertained on Saturday afternoon at a garden party at the Ming Yuen Garden, which has recently been converted into the local studio of the United Photoplay Service Limited formed by Hongkong and North China merchants, including Sir Robert Ho Tung (Chairman) and Mr. Lo Ming-yau, (Managing Director).

Among the founders are noted Messrs. Li Yau-tsun, C.B.E., Lo Wan-keung, Lo Shun-to, Hon. Mr. S. W. Tso, C.B.E., Mr. Lo Kuo, Messrs. Wong Kwong-tin, Mei Lai-fung, Ho Kwong, Chan Lim-pak, Ho Wing, Chan Heung-pak, and Madame Chang Hsueh-liang and several others.

For the purpose of making silent and talking Chinese pictures, it is the intention of the management of this million-dollar cinema concern to establish two studios in Shanghai and one in Hongkong at the Ming Yuen Garden, formerly a Chinese summer amusement resort but now much reduced in size.

Sir Robert Ho Tung and the directors of the company were present at the party on Saturday when several of the "Stars" of the United Photoplay Service Limited contributed some pleasing musical items which received the warm applause of the guests.

RUMOURS DENIED.

DISPUTE OVER REMOVED CHINESE ANTIQUES.

London, Jan. 3. In a letter to The Times, Dr. Percy Stafford Allen, M.A., D.Litt., President of Corpus Christi, Oxford, since 1924, an intimate friend of Sir Aurel Stein, the antiquarian, expresses the conviction that the "remarkable derogatory to new China" attributed to Sir Aurel Stein, are fantastic, ridiculous, and baseless, and suggests that someone invented them. He points out that Sir Aurel Stein had given his formal assurance that no antiquities would be removed from China without Chinese consent.—Reuter.

[Sir Aurel Stein is now in charge of an expedition in the province of Sinkiang. He has already carried out a number of important geographical and archaeological explorations in Central Asia and West China. Toward the end of last year the Society for the Preservation of Ancient Relics petitioned Nanking that his present expedition be stopped, and alleging that he was guilty of attempting to remove valuable relics from the country, in spite of the fact that he had given an undertaking to the Government that he would remove nothing without its permission. It was also alleged that before coming to China Sir Aurel Stein made a speech at the Harvard and Yenching Institute of Chinese Studies attacking Young China and the Kuomintang, and announced that he could bribe the Sinkiang officials to allow him to carry out his purposes. It was further alleged that the meeting voted him

CHINA'S TRADE.

NANKING AND MUKDEN IN ACCORD.

Peking, Jan. 3. Contrary to all expectations, General Chang Hsueh-liang of the Manchurian and Northern Government, has issued a proclamation announcing the determination to co-operate with Nanking for the abolition of all irregular taxes in Fengtien, Hollungkiang, Kirin, Jehol, Chihli, Shansi, etc., districts under his direct control. Stating that during his recent visit to Nanking he had arrived at a complete understanding with the Nanking Finance Minister, Mr. T. V. Soong, General Chang Hsueh-liang said that in future tax administration in his seven provinces in North China would follow regulations and procedures laid down by the Nanking Ministry.

Abolition Announced.

Peking, Jan. 3. Honan, Chihli, Shansi, and Szechuan provinces announce the abolition of (ikin)—Reuter.

Effect of Tariff.

London, Jan. 3. Four thousand employees of the British-American Tobacco Company in Liverpool have been put on half time as a direct consequence of the new Chinese tariff.—Reuter.

£81,000,000 for expenses and £825,000 for the bribing of the officials.]

THE GOLD SHORTAGE.

REDUCTION OF THE FRENCH BANK RATE.

London, Jan. 3. The reduction of the French bank rate to two per cent., following a recent similar move by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, is announced to-day. This is believed to be part of the plan for French and American co-operation, with a view to checking the flow of gold to France and America, which created a serious shortage of gold elsewhere. The plan is a sequel to conversations between the heads of the Bank of England (the Rt. Hon. Montagu Norman), the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, and the Bank of France.

Experts Meet.

Further developments are anticipated as a result of the meeting between British and French Treasury experts at present being held in Paris.

It is suggested that both France and the United States are likely to make a big effort to increase foreign lending, so as to release their gold and leave the British banks in a better position to finance industry.—Reuter.

The Young Plan.

Paris, Jan. 3. In reference to the discussions between British and French financial experts, aiming at closer co-operation between the London and Paris money markets, Le Journal says that Paris will be happy to join "a common policy for the defence of the Young Plan, which is threatened in the near future." Le Matin declares that France is ready to help "certain countries" financially, provided that campaigns for a revision of the Peace Treaty cease.—Reuter.

PEACE PROSPECTS IN 1931.

TURNING POINT IN THE HISTORY OF EUROPE.

London, Jan. 4. At the beginning of the 13th year after the armistice, Europe is still stalked by the spectre of war. This is eloquently illustrated by the Sunday papers.

On its first appearance in 1931 the Sunday Times says that Europe in 1931 will be at the turning point of her history. It does not consider, judging from the immediate outlook, that the prospects of peace and security are too rosy. "On all sides economic depression has produced internal reactions, which tend more toward violence than composure."

Declaring that nobody wants war, the paper urges the mobilization of public opinion during the coming months so as to make its voice decisively heard when the Disarmament Conference meets.

The Observer asserts that the year has opened with increasing diplomatic uneasiness in Europe. It quotes the German Chancellor's New Year's Day demand for "equal security for all nations" and concludes: "Not before has the issue been so clearly fore-shadowed whether Germany is to be driven from Geneva by Geneva's own failure."

Reynold's Illustrated News gives prominence to an interview with Viscount Cecil in which he says: "I think 1931 will be a very critical year. Probably before the end of the year the question of disarmament will become very, very acute."

In a leader the same journal says that Viscount Cecil's warn-

SHANGHAI SUIT.

MR. EDWARDS' CAUSE FOR ACTION.

Shanghai, Jan. 3. Further details in regard to the suit against the Municipal Council, brought by Mr. S. M. Edwards, the present Secretary, were ascertained to-day from official sources, which expressed the wish to remain confidential.

Mr. Edwards apparently claims 50,000 taels as compensation for the cancellation of his option to renew his contract, and as compensation for deprivation of his post as from September to the end of next year, the date of the expiration of his contract.

There has been confessed friction between him and his superiors for some months past on the same score.

The ground for his action before the Courts is as follows:—On August 22 the Salaries Commission report, which was included with the current issue of the Municipal Gazette, recommended that, with a view to the improvement of the relations between the Director General's office and the Secretariat, it was advisable that the Director General should be henceforth described as the "Chief Commissioner and Secretary," the latter title being appended to comply with Law Regulation requirements.

The report went on to say: "If this arrangement is carried out the organization will be improved."

Mr. Stirling Fessenden's appointment as Director General expires on April 17 next year and he will then be recommended to the ratepayers as "Commissioner General and Secretary." Mr. Edwards' services being no longer necessary.

Mr. Fessenden's salary is 20,000 taels and Mr. Edwards' 18,000 taels, so it is commonly believed by local ratepayers that the economy achieved by the change will be negligible, especially as Mr. Fessenden's allowance very probably will be increased.

There is local dissatisfaction with the official attitude, the extreme opinion being that the object of the Salaries Commission, which was economy, is not possible of achievement by such measures.

Mr. Edwards' petition is due to come before the Court of Consuls, consisting of the Consuls General of Great Britain, the United States and Belgium, in about a month's time.

GUNBOAT ATTACKED.

H.M.S. MANTIS FIRED ON BY "RED" TROOPS.

Peking, Jan. 3. Eight hundred Red troops attacked the British gunboat, H.M.S. Mantis, yesterday on the Yangtze, opening heavy fire. The Mantis replied with great effect, inflicting many casualties but receiving none.—Reuter.

ing will be justified speedily as the Council of the League of Nations will shortly be faced with one of the thorniest international questions, namely the ill-treatment of minorities in Europe. Referring to the treatment of Germans in Upper Silesia it declares that a clash between Germany and Poland might well set Europe alight and sap the strength of the League of Nations beyond recovery. It urges that justice must be done at Geneva.—Reuter.

"COMMERCIAL" FLIERS FORCED BACK.

Our picture shows the New York amphibian "Trade Wind" and her pilots, Lieut. W. S. MacLaren and Mrs. Beryl Hart, which set out from New York on a flight to Paris, via Bermuda and the Azores on Saturday. After flying for fifteen hours the machine landed at Hampton Roads, the fliers being forced to turn back by adverse winds. The machine is carrying a "pay-load" of merchandise, and plans a return trip if conditions are favourable.

WITNESSES SAID TO BE MAD!

ARSON CONSPIRACY TRIAL CONTINUES.

PRISONER'S DENIALS.

Li Fui-ping, alias Li Yau, first prisoner in the Wing Lok Street arson case, was cross-examined by Mr. Somerset Fitzroy, counsel for the Crown, when the Criminal Sessions were resumed this morning before Mr. Justice Wood and a jury. At the last hearing on Friday, two of the three counts were withdrawn against first and second prisoners, who are defended by Mr. F. C. Jenkin, the remaining count alleging conspiracy to set fire to No. 77, Wing Lok Street. All three counts still stand against third prisoner, who is not defended.

Prisoner said that he never went into the closed room on the first floor at No. 77, Wing Lok Street and that he had never seen a hammer (produced) which was found in the cockpit. When shown the naphthalene, found on the premises, he stated that he did not know what it was and had not seen anything similar while staying at No. 77. He added that he had never seen anyone go into the closed room. He had never seen the door open and had never looked inside.

Those Prima Leaves. With regard to the ordering of palm leaves, their arrival and delivery, prisoner denied that he had anything to do with ordering them on behalf of the Po Tai, and said that he knew nothing about them.

He admitted that a desk, in which it is alleged documents were found relating to the palm leaves, was used by himself and the staff of the steamship company he intended to start, saying it was brought from Macao and was taken to No. 63, Connaught Road West, the address of the Po Tai firm, on October 15 or 16. He did not know that any documents concerning the palm leaves were in the desk.

Answering further questions, prisoner said that on October 18 (the night of the fire) he slept at No. 63, and his second son, Li Yau, instead of returning to No. 77, being the place where he was accustomed to sleep, made up a bed by putting the desk and a round table together at No. 63.

Asked why his son should make himself an uncomfortable bed instead of returning to No. 77, as it was not late, prisoner said that Li Yau was a very dutiful son and wanted to be beside him (prisoner) all the time.

Witnesses "Mad." Prisoner said that at about 1 a.m. his third son, Li Cheung, came along and told him that there had been a fire at No. 77, saying it had been started by the partners who had been losing money at gambling.

When Mr. Fitzroy referred to the evidence of other witnesses, one of whom stated that he (first prisoner) was not present at No. 63 that night, and another, that he went there for a while and then went away, prisoner said that the witnesses were mad.

The case is proceeding.

"I have come back to find a job," pleaded a Chinese named Li Ping-in, when charged, before Mr. Butters at Kowloon this morning, with having returned from banishment. He was banished in 1928 for a period of ten years. Nine months' imprisonment was now imposed.

CLERK FROM A. S. WATSON'S IN DOCK.

Charged with the embezzlement of $5,200, Cheung Chak-pui, a clerk employed by A. S. Watson and Co., Ltd., was remanded for 48 hours by Mr. Lindell in the Central Magistracy this morning.

CHINESE AND BURMESE IN CONFLICT.

Six Killed in Renewal of Rangoon Rioting.

SPREADING IS FEARED.

Rangoon, Jan. 4. A revival of racial warfare between Chinese and Burmese occurred this morning in the Lamadaw district, in the western part of Rangoon. Six of the combatants were killed and thirty-three were injured.

The total casualties since the trouble began are officially stated to be ten killed and 65 injured. The police have several times been forced to open fire on the mobs to restore order.

Strict steps are being taken to prevent the trouble from spreading.—Reuter.

Appearing for defendant, Mr. F. H. Loseby asked for bail, pointing out the undesirability of filling the gaols at the present time, in view of the prominence given to the question by recent events. The request was not granted.

RECENT SHOOTING AFFAIR.

WOMAN AGAIN APPEARS IN COURT.

Another formal remand for a week was granted by Mr. Lindell at the Central Magistracy this morning, when Jessina Marin Xavier, aged 43 years, was charged with the attempted murder of Mr. A. J. Manton, a Hongkong Tramways Inspector at Wanchai on December 27.

Sub-Inspector M. Murphy, who prosecuted, told the Magistrate that Mr. Manton was progressing as well as could be expected.

THE SOUTH WALES COAL STOPPAGE.

PRIME MINISTER TO RECEIVE DEPUTATION.

London, Jan. 4. The Mines Department announced last night that no agreement was reached at the meeting of the South Wales Joint Conciliation Board at Cardiff yesterday.

The South Wales Miners' Federation has asked for a deputation to be received by the Prime Minister, the President of the Board of Trade and the Mines Secretary, which it is expected will be arranged for Monday.—British Wireless.

REVOLVER BATTLE IN COAL AREA.

POLICE AND COMMUNISTS IN CONFLICT.

GERMAN DISORDERS.

Berlin, Jan. 4. One Communist was killed and several policemen and Communists wounded during a revolver battle between the police and Communists in the coal-mining district on the left bank of the Rhine.

There are 32,000 miners on strike in this district.—Reuter. Notwithstanding the union leaders' efforts to keep the men working, the strike situation in the Ruhr coalfields is becoming worse. A high per centage of the 300,000 workers are idle and the situation is developing an ugly aspect owing to Communist picketing. The pickets including women dressed in men's clothing, are forcibly preventing volunteers from reaching the pits.

Frequent armed clashes with the police have taken place, there being other incidents in which a man was killed and several wounded.—Reuter.

ATTEMPTED FRAUD ALLEGED.

LOCAL BANK'S DEPOSIT CERTIFICATES.

Charges of a serious nature were brought against an unemployed Chinese before Mr. Williams at the Central Police Court this morning, when Detective Sergeant MacDonald charged the man in respect of possession and uttering of two certificates of deposit on the Equitable Eastern Bank Corporation for $10,000 issued to Mr. Chi Ki-chia in August last.

The prosecuting officer made an application for a remand for 48 hours and indicated that the police wished to enable the defendant to secure certain witnesses for the defence.

The case was adjourned until Wednesday morning.

ROLLING STOCK NEEDED.

NANKING'S WARNING TO WAR LORDS.

Nanking, Jan. 4. The Nanking Executive Council yesterday issued a decree warning military officers in North China against the procedure of commandeering rolling stock of the railways and requesting them to restore all rolling stock which they held.

Taiwanfu telegrams state that General Han Fu-chu, the Military Governor of Shantung, has returned one locomotive and 114 freight and passenger coaches of the Tientsin-Pukow Railway, two locomotives 280 freight and passenger coaches of the Tientsin-Kiaoow Railway, and four locomotives from the Peking-Hankow Railway to the management of the respective lines.

General Han states that he retains only one locomotive and thirty coaches for the transportation of troops in connexion with the anti-bandit campaign in Shantung.
